THE SENIOR CLASS

THE ILLMAN SCHOOL 1929~1930

4000 Pine Street
Philadelphia — Pennsylvania

FOREWORD

THE CLASS OF NINETEEN THIRTY HEREWITH PRE-SENTS THE EIGHTH ISSUE OF THE SCHOOL ANNUAL. WE HAVE CHOSEN TO CARRY ON THE NAME, THE SPAN, THAT WAS SELECTED LAST YEAR AS THE TITLE OF THE BOOK. WE HOPE THAT IT WILL PROVE TO BE AN INVALU-ABLE POSSESSION AND THAT IN FUTURE TIME IT WILL BRIDGE THE SPAN OF YEARS SEPARATING YOU FROM YOUR SCHOOL LIFE AND BRING BACK THE MEMORIES OF THE HAPPY TIMES YOU HAD AT THE ILLMAN SCHOOL.

DEDICATION

WE, THE CLASS OF NINETEEN/THIRTY, DO SINCERELY DEDICATE THIS, OUR YEAR BOOK, TO YOU, MISS ILLMAN, WHO HAVE BORNE THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF OUR BELOVED ALMA MATER, WHOSE INFLUENCE IN OUR LIVES WE CHERISH, AND IN WHOM ARE CENTERED OUR BRIGHTEST HOPES AND INSPIRATIONS FOR A GREATER ILLMAN SCHOOL.

IN APPRECIATION

GO ONE WHO HAS MADE THIS, OUR SENIOR YEAR, ONE OF JOY AND INCREASED KNOWLEDGE DUE TO HER LOYALTY, PERSONAL INTEREST, AND NEVER-ENDING PATIENCE, IN WHOSE HANDS MANY OF OUR CONFIDENCES WERE SECURELY PLACED, IN WHOSE PRESENCE, AND UNDER WHOSE GUIDANCE WE HAVE WORKED WITH GREAT ENJOYMENT.

TO YOU, MISS THORPE, IN THIS INADE-QUATE MANNER, THE SENIOR CLASS OF NINETEEN/THIRTY WISHES TO EXPRESS ITS SINCERE THANKS FOR THE VAST AMOUNT OF TIME YOU HAVE WORKED WITH US, AND FOR YOUR EXAMPLE OF CONDUCT WHICH WILL BE AN INSPIRATION TO US IN OUR FUTURE ENDEAVOR.

BROWN TREES IN THE RAIN

The yellow trees Are brown trees now, Dripping in the rain.

They do not dance. They cannot Dance. They stand silent.

The little brown trees, That were yellow trees Only a short while ago, Look downcast and bewildered. They wonder What has happened.

Slowly the brown leaves Drop To the wet pavement. There is a pile of wet brown leaves In the gutter.

A west wind plays softly.
The brown leaves stir
In protest.
"We cannot dance," they
Murmur, feebly.
The little trees look on Bewildered.
They silently drop their little brown leaves.

It begins to rain again.

HELEN LOUISE NEWLIN.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Adelaide T. Illman Faculty Advisor

Martha Belt Helen Louise Newlin Margaret Hafer VIRGINA METER MARY RUTH MILLER ADELINE SHORTLIDGE

JANET NEWMAN

HE members of the Student Council are Miss Illman as Faculty Representative, the President of the Senior Class, the President of the Junior Class, a girl elected from the Senior Class, a girl elected from the Junior Class, and the House President from each dormitory.

This is the third year that the Student Council has been functioning in our school. Although it is still in its infancy it has nevertheless proved to be an important, efficient organization. A proof of its efficiency lies in the fact that it is apparently a very quiet institution with few problems. They are few, it is true, but that is as it should be. Our school life runs along smoothly and happily. We sincerely hope that in the succeeding years the situation will remain unchanged.

DRAMATIC CLUB

RAMATIC interests at the Illman School were first brought to note during the year of 1927, at which time the Illman Dramatic Club was organized. Its purpose is that of fostering dramatics and stimulating an interest in them. This purpose has been realized as is shown by the attention it receives and by the large following it has acquired.

Since its organization the Dramatic Club has produced annually either three oneact plays or a one three-act play in the Spring of the year. The performance is usually followed by a dance. In the year 1928-1929, with Margaret Robinson as President, Thackeray's "The Rose and the Ring" was successfully presented to a most appreciative audience.

This year Margaret Hafer is President, Janet Newman, Vice President, Edna Charles, Secretary, Mary Land, Treasurer. At Christmas, "Why the Chimes Rang" was given at the Philomusian Club. The scenery and properties were made and arranged for by the members of the Dramatic Club. Sir James M. Barrie's "Quality Street" has been selected as the play to be produced and is now under way for presentation in early May. We feel sure the play will provide a most pleasant evening's entertainment and that it will receive the usual splendid support of the student body and the many friends of the school.

QUALITY STREET

QUALITY STREET

HE Dramatic Club presented Sir James M. Barrie's "Quality Street" on May ninth to a most appreciative audience at the Philomusian Club. The performance received an excellent write-up in the Town Crier, which is here reproduced.

"The Dramatic Club of the Illman School last night revived Sir James M. Barrie's little whimsy, 'Quality Street,' with charm and some distinction before an audience in the auditorium of the Philomusian Club, at 40th and Walnut Streets. The players showed surprising dexterity, both in acting and in speaking their lines. They played the piece in a subdued key, and made of it a thing of shimmering loveliness.

Grace M. Stanistreet directed the presentation and her able work was reflected in the acting. Margaret Hafer was excellent as Phoebe Throssel, who takes up school teaching after her lover has gone away to war. She showed a remarkable understanding of her part. Anne Lunsford was Valentine Brown, Phoebe's lover, and enacted the difficult role with ease and grace. Charlotte Belland as Susan Throssel did a remarkable bit of work. Ruth Buck gave a praise-worthy performance in the part of a saucy pupil in Phoebe's school. Brenda Hazzard, Natalie Reisman and Arnold Fleetwood acquitted themselves well in their roles of the 'old maids' of the household. The others of the cast gave commendable characterizations."

GLORIOUS ILLMAN

Lyrics

RUTH PRICHARD

SCHOOL SONG

When the sun shines down on the gold and brown Of the flower we hold high, It turns its bright face and with stately grace, Uphfts it to the sky. So we, in our quest for the finest and best, Seek ever for the light Of truth and learning, as our hearts are turning To the goal always in sight.

CHORUS

Lift the chorus ever onward! Praise the gold and white! Hail to thee, our Alma Mater, Glorious and bright!

II

In the midst of strife and in calmer life Stands our school serenely fair, Be it loss, be it gam, she will e'er maintain Her standards fine and rare. Then let us e'er praise and with triumph raise The name of Illman School, And keep it forever, mar it never, A bright unblemished jewel.

Chorus, etc.

BROWNIES

Brownies plaz, all night While people sleep.

One night I waked and saw them.
They were dancing or the bottom of my bed,
And on the floor,
And everywhere.

The moon was looking in and watching them. (A little star peeped, too)

I lay so still I hardly breathed, But inside I was glad And singing all the while, As I watched the brownies dance.

After while they went away, (Or, perhaps, I fell asleep) Anyway The brownies weren't dancing any more

I hope some other night
When the moon is shining in
(And, perhaps, a little star)
The brownies will come back again
And dance for me
On the bottom of my bed
And on the floor
And everywhere.

HELEN LOUISE NEWLIN.

"ME, AT NIGHT"

Ι

At seven Mother says, "Good-night! Go quietly, my dear."
And Daddy says, "G'night, old man.
Yes, Nursie, he's in here."

H

"A kiss, my darling," Mother says, And kisses me just so. And Daddy says, "Captain, salute!" And marching out I go.

III

I am the Captain of the stairs, I pass among my men, And when I finally reach the head, I turn and speak to them.

IV

"Stand still, my steps, until I come,
I'll be around at two."
And Nursie smiles and says, "Come! come'
I have some work to do."

V

Then after she has left my room, And I am tucked in bed, I close my eyes, pretend to sleep, Until the time I said. VI

Just when the clock strikes one and two, My door is opened wide, And in there walks my aide-de-camp Who stands right by my side.

VII

He holds my shining shield and sword, He helps me with my suit, And down the hall in great array We go in our high boots.

VIII

I lead my army strong and brave, We battle all the night, And then we start our homeward way, When morning first grows light.

IΧ

And when we reach the downstairs hall, I shout, "Ho! Halt, my men!"
And walking up, I reach the head,
And praise them all again.

X

And barely do I crawl in bed When Nurse comes in to me. That I've been fighting all night long She never seems to see.

ELLEN COLEMAN DUPONT.

THE FAIRY

This fairy, when I saw her, Which was not so long ago, Was sitting on an apple bough Swinging to and fro.

I stepped a little nearer, To see if I could see If this were the kind of fairy Who'd like to stay to tea.

She wore a dress of softest green, Her wings were silver light; Her hair was yellow as the sun. She was a pretty sight.

I was just about to say to her In my politest way, "Fairy, will you stay to tea?" When—she flew away,

HELEN LOUISE NEWLIN.

NIGHT THOUGHTS

A wood fire sputters on the hearth Of a cozy little room, A cat sits on a window sill And smiles at yonder Moon.

A mouse chews at a pantry shelf; A dog begins to howl; I go to bed all by myself, And never even growl.

Abodes

Fences were made for cats to sit on. Mats, for dogs to he. Jungles were made for lions, For birds, the bright, blue sky.

Meadows were made for cows to graze in. For fish, the merry sea.
But houses were made for children,
Just like you and me!

The Mop

The mop in our house is so useful. We use it for most everything. For a horse, and a pig and a cannibal wig, And for housecleaning early in spring.

MARGARET HAFER.

OUR LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

. We, the Class of Nineteen-thirty, being of sound and disposing mind, after careful deliberation upon the uncertainties of this life, particularly in the next few months, do therefore declare this our last Will and Testament, and accordingly do bequeath and bestow in the manner following:

PART I

To Miss Illman, a class of students who will bring along their professional attitude in their trunks.

To Miss Thorpe, a girl with self-electrification to successfully relate stories. To Dr. King, noiseless notebook clips that do not disturb the statistical mind.

To Miss Portia Miller, a filing case for her notes so that she will not mix them and talk about birds under wild animals.

To Dr. Oberly, those Senior brains to whom the final exams proved fatal, for purposes of experimentation.

To Miss Bertolette, the ability to decipher the difference between our plaids and stripes.

To Miss Baker, a felt lined gymnasium floor for those girls who insist upon wearing street shoes.

To Miss Motheral, a few animated contributors in each class who are ready with detailed illustrations (true or untrue).

To Dr. Russell, a group of high-minded individuals who do not go around carving their initials in the salt-frost on the windows.

To Miss Florence Miller, an extra class period each week to provide time to cover all the work scheduled in the course.

To Mr. Hammann, some one who can play Liebestraum so as to save time and energy in music periods.

To Mrs. Davis, a class of agile tongued girls who can rehearse those many little exercises for the correction of speech.

To Dr. Weyl, a group that can think of new excuses for being late other than the old one of having stopped in a drug store after "gym" for delayed breakfasts.

To Mrs. Dotterer, two hundred and ten alarm clocks that go off before quarter to nine on Saturday mornings.

To Miss Watson, a "steady" group of girls who do not have to be muzzled during observation.

To Mr. McKelvie, just one class who is unobservant of what the correct young man should wear.

To Miss Matlack, at least a half of class of unpopular students who do not receive telephone calls during school hours.

To Miss Brooks, just one girl who is able to use a library file in the technical manner.

To Miss McElwee, the magic of making two "Beginning Teachers" out of one. To Mrs. MacMillan, our appreciation for the subtle wit and repartee that makes these "MacMillanisms" so priceless.

To our House Mother, several dozens pairs of soft soled bedroom slippers to replace the ever-flopping mule.

Part 11

The remainder of our estate, both real and personal, in what ever condition it may be at the time of our departure, we do hereby will, pass on, bequeath and leave as follows:

Martha Belt leaves to Shorty Shortlidge the ability to run the Illman School as it should be run.

The Brown-Beckley's leave their syncopated sister song and step act to Mary Cooke and Dot Hartman.

To Helen Foard, Kay Keiper bequeaths her collegiate capers and purple shoes.

Marcia Beatty leaves her sunny disposition to Louise Bill.

Lucy Evans passes on her daily trips to Zullinger's to any Junior suffering from the vain illusion of love.

Muriel Saxon, Martha Belt and Grace Woodward leave their interest in internes to "Bobby" Betner, Vera Solis and Kay Weiland.

Peggy McHugh wills to Virginia Nelson her role as bridesmaid.

Anna Wetzler leaves her saxophone to those interested in syncopated music. Caroline Fell bequeaths her "happy days and lonely nights" to any adolescent Junior.

To the 4000 Pine Street dormitory Helen Sanner wills her delightful sense of humor.

Josephine Baldwin inherits Kate Seager's surprising agility to "clear the buck." Ruth Saville leaves her successful Bohemian entertainments to any Junior dormitory girl who goes in for the unusual.

Nancy Cross bequeaths her "cinnamon top" to Mary Peterson.

Edna Sweet passes on to Marion Gough her nocturnal long distance calls. Betty Argall leaves her endless capacity for doughnuts to Martha Oliver. Ruth Johnson wills her "gym" tunic to Mardi Goheen who seems to have mislaid hers.

Mary McAndrew bequeaths to future Seniors the example of her fine play spirit. Dorthea Raymond leaves her fashionable curves to Helen Ambler.

Frances Leberman leaves her red nail polish to any unfortunate Juniors suffering from anaemia.

Midge Pursel bequeaths to Lillian Lorch her fifty-trip ticket to Princeton. Sally Redman passes on to Clara Anderson her spirited performances in games-

Lena Greenebaum leaves her car and chauffeur to be used as the school bus for "gym" excursions.

Heser Swann wills her shorn locks to Oakley Van Nostrand.

Tibby Tamblyn leaves her good sportsmanship to Louise Bill.

Ruth Paynter and Virginia Smith leave their prowess on the basketball floor to "Candy" St. Clair and Mary Ruane.

Mary Price bequeaths her love of things canine to Hanna Monroe.

Babs Fleishman's talent in tap dancing goes to the Junior "gym" class.

Mary Freese leaves the art of making platonic friendships to Sally Thompson.

Polly Newlin bequeaths the bravery of being herself to any Junior with a single-track mind.

The gift of being vague Madge Dannenbaum wills to Kitty Holland.

Marnie Davis leaves her silver-toned foghorn to Dottie Mintz.

Bunny Du Pont and Bluey Hafer leave their sociological interest to any youthful aspirants of the Junior Class who wish to further the eause or effect.

Carlyn Sefton leaves her red hats to her Junior roommate in order to keep them in the school. We hope that the said Junior will in her turn pass them on to perpetuate the Illman tradition.

Teegee Baker leaves the suntan of many month's struggle on the Atlantic City sands to Dot Poland.

Henri Law wills the gentle art of baby talk to Amanda Druckenmiller.

Mary Schlegel reluctantly bequeaths her aptitude for tardiness to Betty Saunder. To Peg Wickersham, Mary Louise Lohr leaves her realistic interpretations of small furry animals.

Mary Land, Anne Lunsford and Rachel Michael leave their "shaggy steps" to Virginia Nelson, Biddy Zacharias and Madoline Airhart.

Eunie Ahrens bequeaths her taciturnity to the Junior Class in general. May they profit by it!

Sylvia Hulton leaves to the several dormitories a generous proportion of her chestnut brown locks to be used (in the event of fires) as rope ladders.

Marion Stone inherits Billy Bookmyer's cosmetic equipment.

Edna Charles leaves her silent delight in ice cream cones to any coke-drinking

Bettie Sommers passes on her woman's privilege of changing her mind to Louise

Bebe Bell leaves her dentists bill to Laura Sausser.

Jeanne Solomon bequeaths the longest pair of eye lashes that ever flapped to Elliot Weiner.

Betty Laird and Susan Jane Keener will their excess energy to Martha Oliver and Kay Weiland.

To Bud Laurer, Lillian Beddall leaves her femininity.

Dinny Dunlap and Noot Miller bequeath their avoirdupois to Lillian Lorch and Betty Culver.

Kitty Birely wills her seductiveness to Helen Weaver.

Marion Green leaves her Naval correspondence to Eva Mason who yearns to be just a sailor's sweetheart.

Ruth Woollens wills her haughty demeanor to Beth Levan.

Edwina Nichols bequeaths to an Illman pedestrian her "tin toy."

To Margaret West, Cassie Prettyman wills her Eastern Shore, Maryland, accent. Marie Murray leaves to Peg Wickersham her apt interpretations of Illman characters.

Tancy Bowers leaves her charming smile to Juniors at nine o'clock on Saturday morning.

Peggy Evans leaves her afternoon rendezvous in the Chrysler to Dot Hartman. Helen Fickes bequeaths her Greta Garbo bob to Mary Oliver.

Ginny Fisk leaves her "one man" disposition to Anna Keller.

Elsie Tepel leaves her ventures in love to Mary Cooke as she has no further interest in them.

Ruth Willis passes on her effective coiffure to those Juniors who are letting their Harriet Will bequeaths her keen intelligence to all aspiring Juniors.

Ruth Buck leaves her keen knowledge of Greek letters to Kay Murphy and Jeannette Simmons.

Polly Herzfeld leaves the giggle, with which she invariably responds to sociological subjects, to Dorothy Wolfe.

Ginny Meter leaves to Bobbie Betner her much envied punctuality. Mildred Muschlitz leaves her role as vamp to Charlotte Logan.

Mary Outland bequeaths her brief-case to the next editor of the Year Book in the hope that it will enable said editor to keep track of material.

Doris May Snyder leaves her dusky allure to Oakley Van Nostrand.

To Edna Kagerman, Mary Daniels leaves her Kewpie face.

Charlotte Belland passes on her operatic bravado to Dot Hartman.

Louise Braun leaves her lisp to Winifred Whittaker.

To Frances Robinson, Jimmy Edmondson bequeaths her violent passion for green.

Dot Charney inherits Mae Harker's genial smile.

Helen Guckes wills her golden nimbus to Tess Steinhart.

Ethel Haven leaves her wooden beads to the Juniors and Miss Worrell for play materials.

Hannah Galbreath passes on her timely fainting spells to Amanda Druckenmiller.

Brenda Hazzard wills her gymnastic interpretations to the entire Class of 1931. To Katherine Holland, Helen Dewees wills her eternal efficiency in everything. Gwen Dutton leaves to Shorty Shortlidge her frequent discussions with Mrs. MacMillan on free-thinking.

Biddy Zacharias inherits Marian Maitland's longest earrings.

Freda Dennis leaves her Bangor, Maine, accent to Boots Wolff. Theresa Riley wills her nonchalant air to tardy Juniors.

The faculty for asking intelligent questions, Ruth Stauffer leaves to Janet Newman

Eleanor Rossell leaves her blatancy to Vera Solis.

To the next year's Seniors, Dorothy Mundy passes on her animation in story hour.

Marion Lloyd wills her five pound ring to any Junior trying to gain weight.

Evelyn Krissinger leaves her loquacity to Mary Ruane.

Elizabeth Metten wills her interest and effort to Teddy McLaughlin.

Mildred Martin bequeaths to Mary Vaughan her saccharine smile.

Pat Iszard wills her shifting eye-brows to Evelyn Maas.

Ethel Kline leaves to any flunkee the honor of dancing with Dr. Oberly at school dances.

The Literary Editors bequeath flashlights and batteries to be used "after lights" for work on delayed Year Book material, several dozen paper tablets, many pencils, and the ability to be imaginative under the most trying difficulties to next year's staff.

Signed and sealed on this last day in March in the year of our Lord, Nineteen Thirty.
